

Analysis of Consumer Financial Fraud and Prevention Strategies
CIS 3319: Wireless Networks and Security / CIS 4378: Computer and Network Security
Lab 1: Consumer Financial Fraud Investigation

Group Members:
Aaron Jefferson

01-Feb-2024

Abstract

Provide a brief summary of the report, including key findings and conclusions.

Contents

1 Introduction 1

2 Exploration of Consumer Financial Fraud 1

2.1 Examples and Analysis 1

2.2 Common Vulnerabilities and Attack Vectors 2

3 Prevention Advice Analysis 2

3.1 Examples of Advice 2

3.2 Summary of Common Advice 2

4 Effectiveness of Prevention Strategies 2

4.1 Analysis of Advice Against Vulnerabilities 2

4.2 Limitations and Unaddressed Threats 2

4.3 Tailoring Advice for Specific Populations 2

5 Conclusion 2

6 References 3

1 Introduction

Provide an overview of the report’s purpose, the importance of understanding consumer financial fraud, and an overview of your methodology.

2 Exploration of Consumer Financial Fraud

2.1 Examples and Analysis

Source	Brief Description
WhatsApp Fraud: Mimics of Punjab	A case of social engineering where victims are deceived into financial loss.
Discuss each example in detail, focusing on how the fraud was perpetrated.

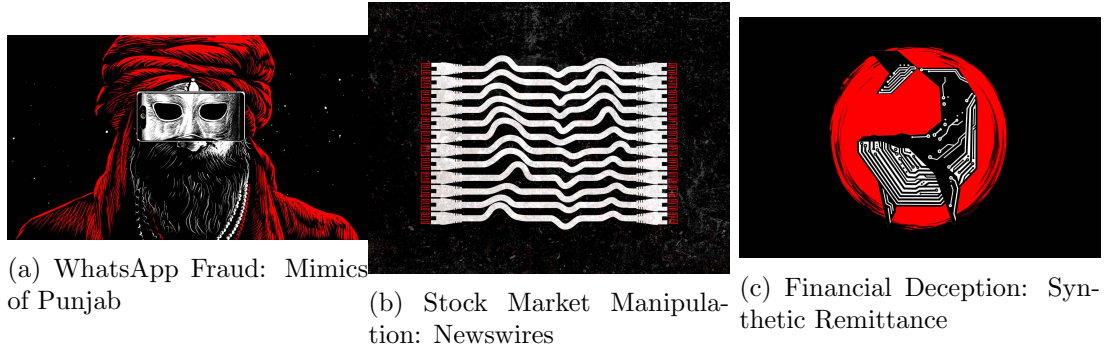

Figure 1: Visual Representations of Financial Fraud Cases

2.2 Common Vulnerabilities and Attack Vectors

Summarize the common vulnerabilities and attack vectors identified in the examples.

3 Prevention Advice Analysis

3.1 Examples of Advice

Source	Advice
www.example.com	1. Advice 1 2. Advice 2

Discuss each piece of advice, ensuring clarity for a general audience.

3.2 Summary of Common Advice

Summarize the common pieces of advice identified.

4 Effectiveness of Prevention Strategies

4.1 Analysis of Advice Against Vulnerabilities

Assess how each piece of advice addresses the vulnerabilities and attack vectors.

4.2 Limitations and Unaddressed Threats

Identify any advice that does not target vulnerabilities or attack vectors, and highlight any attacks not defended by the advice.

4.3 Tailoring Advice for Specific Populations

Discuss how advice might need modification for older adults, non-native English speakers, visually impaired users, etc.

5 Conclusion

Summarize the key findings, the effectiveness of current advice, and any recommendations for improvement.

6 References

List all sources used in your report.